Brief Explanation (aims and expected outcome) (max100 words)	Light remains the key tool for discovering geometry, form and materiality. Light is ambivalent to any other stylistic, historic or cultural feature for “reading” the built form. By contextualizing this to Famagusta, a typical Mediterranean and layered city, the participants of the workshop are leaded to discover the power that light have for “seeing” the built environment in a deeper way, more universally, beyond any other definition related to time or styles. This approach to the Mediterranean light invites students to think about what constitutes identity, in spatial or formal terms. The outcome can be a series of photos, abstract 2d or 3d models etc.
